

I object to the sale of Rainbow One to Echostar LLC on the following points.

Voom is a direct provider of Multiple High definition programming, something the FCC has been pushing towards for years now. Echostar has made very little attempt to carry High Definition programming as well as Direct TV only carrying HD lite, a bandwidth reduced version of HD. The sale of Voom's Rainbow 1 would be a major step backwards in the commissions goal of High Definition programming.

Thank you
